About Palmer

Château Palmer is a Third Growth of Margaux that regularly makes wine of First Growth standard. It is named after Charles Palmer, a British general who bought the estate in 1814, and is owned today by the Sichel and Mähler-Besse families.

Palmer is farmed biodynamically and uses an unusually high share of Merlot for the Médoc, giving wines of lush texture and perfume.

About Alter Ego

Alter Ego is the second wine of Château Palmer in Margaux, first made in 1998. It is not simply a selection of lesser lots but is blended to its own style, more open and fruit-forward than the grand vin, with Merlot playing a large part alongside Cabernet Sauvignon. It is enjoyable earlier and ages well for a decade or more.
