About Luciano Sandrone

Luciano Sandrone made his first wine with the 1978 vintage, from a small plot in the Cannubi Boschis vineyard in the village of Barolo, while still working as a cellarman for another estate. From these modest beginnings he built one of Piedmont's most respected family wineries, working with his brother Luca and daughter Barbara.

Sandrone's Barolos are known for combining depth and structure with polish and approachability, achieved through careful selection in the vineyard and ageing in medium-sized casks. The estate now has vineyards in several villages of the Barolo zone, and its wines are widely collected for their consistency and elegance.

About Barolo, Cannubi Boschis

Cannubi Boschis is a section of the famous Cannubi hill in the village of Barolo, and the vineyard where Luciano Sandrone began. His Barolo from it became the estate's flagship: a rich, polished Nebbiolo with dark cherry, rose and spice, ripe but firm tannins and great length. From the 2013 vintage the wine has been renamed Aleste. It ages well for twenty years or more.
