About Symington

The Symington family has been involved in the Port trade since the late nineteenth century and has become the largest owner of vineyards in the Douro valley. The family owns several of the leading Port houses, including Graham's, Dow's, Warre's and Cockburn's, and is still run by family members.

Alongside the house blends, the Symingtons produce single-quinta Ports from individual estates. One of the best known is Quinta do Vesuvio, a historic property in the Douro Superior bought by the family in 1989, where grapes are still trodden by foot in granite lagares.

About Quinta do Vesuvio Vintage

Quinta do Vesuvio Vintage Port comes from a single estate in the Douro Superior, made from traditional varieties trodden by foot in granite lagares. It is a rich, deep Port with dark fruit, floral and spicy notes and firm tannins. Like other vintage Ports, it needs many years in bottle to develop and good vintages last for decades.
