About La Lagune

Château La Lagune is in Ludon, at the southern end of the Médoc close to the city of Bordeaux, and was ranked Third Growth in the 1855 Classification. It is one of the few classed growths in the Haut-Médoc appellation rather than a named commune.

Since 2000 it has been owned by the Frey family, who have renovated the cellars and vineyard, with Caroline Frey in charge of winemaking. Its gravel soils give an elegant, fragrant claret, and the estate is known for its consistency among the classed growths.

About the wine

La Lagune is a blend led by Cabernet Sauvignon with Merlot and a notable share of Petit Verdot, grown on deep gravel in Ludon. It is a refined, perfumed Haut-Médoc with dark fruit and fine tannins. It is approachable after about eight years and ages well for twenty years or more.
