About Kutch

Kutch Wines was founded in 2005 by Jamie Kutch, who left a career in finance in New York to make Pinot Noir in California. He focuses on cool, coastal vineyards in Sonoma County.

Kutch works with a light hand, often fermenting Pinot Noir with whole clusters and using little new oak, to make wines of freshness, perfume and moderate alcohol. The range is built around single-vineyard Pinot Noirs from the true Sonoma Coast, close to the Pacific.

About McDougall Ranch Pinot Noir, Sonoma Coast

McDougall Ranch is a vineyard on the far Sonoma Coast, on ridges close to the Pacific Ocean, where cool conditions give Pinot Noir high acidity and intense aromatics. Kutch ferments it largely with whole clusters, giving a perfumed, spicy and finely structured wine. It is attractive young and develops well over about ten years.
